NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "Fighting on the Congo," by Herbert Strang, a story of exciting adventures in the Congo Free State. While the story is intended chiefly for boys, the author has also done a very creditable piece of work in illuminating the general condition of the Congo Free State under Belgian misgovernment.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. announce for publication on March 26 "Wuthering Heights," by Emily Brontë, the first volume of the Large Print Library, which is arranged for those of defective eyesight; also, "Farm Management," by F. W. Card, dealing with systematic and economical methods of farm financing, the volume being the second of the Farm Library.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY is handling for D. Appleton & Co. the paper-bound edition of Hall Caine's remarkable book on "Drink," a story based on the curative value of hypnotism. Mr. Caine wrote the book some time ago, but refused every offer to publish it. Finally he consented, provided it were sold at a low price. It has already been translated into most of the European languages, and in England has sold nearly 200,000.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will issue early in April a new kind of "nature book"—one that is suitable for all seasons of the year. It is entitled "Four Seasons in the Garden," a book for the amateur gardener, and is the work of Eben E. Rexford, one of the foremost amateur gardeners in the United States. There are twenty-seven full-page illustrations in tints, a frontispiece in color, decorated title-page, half titles and lining papers. The fifteenth volume of Dr. Horace Howard Furness's Variorum edition of Shakespeare will be ready for publication during May. "Antony and Cleopatra" is the play chosen by Dr. Furness for his latest work.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have just ready "Where the Trail Divides," by Will Lillibridge, author of "Ben Blair," with illustrations in color by the Kinneys, a vivid story of the Dakota prairies in the '60's and '70's, of massacring Indians and desperate frontiersmen, of cowboys and tough characters, of rough, hard, healthy life in a tiny settlement and the surrounding ranches far out in the prairie country; "The Flyers," by George Barr McCutcheon, an exciting story of a double elopement, with pictures in color by Harrison Fisher; "Is He Popenjoy?" by Anthony Trollope, the third in the series called The Manor House Novels; "The Many-sided Roosevelt," an anecdotal biography of the President, by George William Douglas; also, "Recollections of Men and Horses," by Hamilton Busbey, who was for thirty-eight consecutive years editor of Turf, Field and Farm, and a recognized authority on his subject.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 30th inst. F. Hopkinson Smith's long-promised new volume, "The Veiled Lady, and Other Men and Women," stories of life in the East, in Holland, in New York, and on Long Island Sound, all told with the same tone of kindly humor and genial but keen observation of character; "'Rudin' and 'A King Lear of the Steppes,'" "Father and Children," "A Nobleman's Nest" and "On the Eve," four volumes in the new edition of the works of Turgénieff, translated from the Russian by Isabel F. Hapgood; "A Bird's Eye View of American History," by Leon C. Prince, a concise history of America, presenting clearly and interestingly the essential facts and preserving a just proportion between events; also, "A Short History of the American Navy," by John R. Spears, with illustrations by Carlton T. Chapman and others, published under the auspices of the Navy League of the United States.

The author regards the universe as objective to God—as bearing the same relation to him that the body bears to the soul. He builds a theory that solves many of the difficulties that have baffled both idealists and materialists, and he shows himself abreast of the most recent discoveries and speculations of scientists. No possible advance of science can render his hypothesis obsolete, for he believes that all science is but one of God's creatures.

Colestock, Rev. H: T: The ministry of David Baldwin: a novel. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. 369 p. il. D. †$1.50.

David Baldwin, a young minister fresh from theological seminary, and imbued with many advanced ideas, is called to an ultra-conservative pulpit in the West. He is a sincere young man, though not always tactful, and he preaches the truth as he sees it. He is promptly declared "unsound," and a battle ensues between his desire to be true to his principles and to keep his position. A counter picture of the congregation itself, with its little factions and bickerings, is given so faithfully that it must appeal to every reader as being founded closely upon fact.

The story opens unsensationally in a little seaside English town, offering attractive scenes of country life. The boy narrator, who grows up with the story, begins his career at a school at Falmouth, where he meets a number of odd characters and learns through startling incidents of hidden treasure and Poison Island. Finally a queer group of men and women start on a treasure hunt and find what they are searching for. With murder and robbery and other crimes are humorous delineations of men and women and events, making an unusual literary combination.

Laughlin, Clara Elizabeth. Felicity: the making of a comédienne; il. by Alice Barber Stephens. N. Y., Scribner, 1907. c. 8+426 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The career of a bright New England girl, who makes her first appearance on the stage when only a child, is used as a means of illustrating the methods by which a successful actress is made. She is the protégée of an old and famous actor, who initiates her into all the mysteries of life behind the curtain. Many typical actors and actresses are cleverly described. Fame, however, when it comes, does not entirely fill Felicity's heart, a pretty love story completing the narrative.

Le Rossignol, Ja. E: Orthodox socialism: a criticism. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. 7+147 p. D. (Lib. of economics and politics.) cl., $1 net.

The author, who is professor of economics in the University of Denver, does not think the Marxian or "scientific" socialism scientific at all. His book, covering the creed itself, various economic conditions of the past and the present, the class struggle and the "social revolution," is a practical exposition of what socialistic ideas really amount to. Of the social revolution he says "It is reasonable to suppose that the dominant labor class of the future . . . will bend their energies not to the destruction of capitalism but to the preservation and utilization of it." Editor is professor of Latin in the University of California. "The object of this edition," says the preface, "is to bring into compact form the results of critical work on the poem since Munro's posthumous edition of 1886, and also to indicate the sources of criticism prior to 1886 that were either disregarded by or unknown to him." The notes therefore are unusually comprehensive.

Dr. Magill was connected with Swarthmore College from its opening in 1868, and was for nearly twenty years, from 1871 to 1890, its President. This record of his life is rich in information and interest to teachers, as he was one of the pioneers in our modern system of education. It begins with an account of the author's early life; of his determined struggle for a thorough education at Williston Seminary, Yale College and Brown University; of his distinguished service as a teacher in the Providence High School, the Boston Latin School, and especially at Swarthmore College. "In range this book is in general agreement with the practice of [English] schools; containing the geometry, algebra and trigonometry usually read by pupils that do not specialize in mathematics. In detail there are a few differences. Thus the addition theorem in trigonometry is of no great use for the solution of triangles, nor has the manipulation involved sufficient training value to justify the inclusion of the theorem. On the other hand, a certain amount of solid geometry is included from a belief in its value for both knowledge and training. The book has the form of a summarized discussion between teacher and pupils."—Preface.

Intended for the use of upper forms in schools. The editors give two reasons why Martial should be read in these forms. In the first place, his epigrams belong to a distinct species of literature, characteristically Roman both in form and matter. Secondly, Martial throws a valuable and instructive light on the social life of Rome in the first century of our era. The introduction gives a connected account of certain features of Roman life constantly referred to in the epigrams. There is also a sketch of Martial's life. Index of first lines. Index of proper names. General index.

The story opens in Vienna on a Christmas night. The wife of the Grand Duke is badly burned. Great doctors are called. One young assistant has a plan to graft skin from a woman who much resembles the duchess, and is now under sentence of death. The story goes into much detail before reaching a climax which is somewhat gruesome. The devotion of a skillful doctor to his profession is the leading theme.

On a snowy afternoon a tramp and his dog entered the little country schoolhouse and cheered the children. One boy of twelve became his devoted slave. He was an orphan child adopted to help with the work. The author of "Ralph Marlowe" and "The Kentuckian" draws amusing and pathetic pictures of the scalawags. The older scalawag had loved the younger scalawag's mother, and the boy became a great influence for good in his careless life.

Oxenham, J: The long road. N. Y., Macmillan, 1907. c. 356 p. front. D. cl., †$1.50.
The long road" is from Kazan in Russia to Irkutsk in Siberia, tramped by a group of political exiles. The scene is laid entirely in Siberia, the story having to do with the life of Stepan Iline, the son of one of the exiles. Stepan comes to Siberia so young that it is home to him; he has married a woman he loves and has a charming child, when he comes in conflict with the brutal governor of his province, who devises for him an extraordinarily injurious punishment that makes him forever a wanderer on the face of the earth. Stepan's struggle with his fate, and his effort to wring some happiness out of his lot, is told with much pathos and poetical feeling. The central incident, the author states, is a historical fact. Mr. Oxenham has written "God's prisoners" and other novels.

The Biblical Aramic is "the vernacular speech of the Jews in the Persian and Greek periods of their history." The Aramean dialect, during the seventh and eighth centuries B.C., was used even in Babylonia and Assyria, along with the native speech. By grammatical analyses, Dr. Powell arrives at the conclusion that the supposed Hebraisms in the grammar of this dialect were really very few, and that these at best originated not in the Hebrew, but in a dialectical variety of Aramaic.

A beautiful woman, who began life as a singer in a café, is the adventuress. When a very young girl a great banker married her and committed suicide, so it was said, within a week, leaving her his immense fortune. The story represents her as being received by the best people of London, where she runs an amazing career of crime. She uses her fortune as a means of getting young men in her toils. When unable to return her loans she threatens them with ruin, unless they aid her in her criminal and revengeful schemes.

Van Eeden, Frederik. The quest: the authorized translation from the Dutch of "De kleine Johannes," by L. W. C. Bost., John W. Luce & Co., 1907. c. 519 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The author is a recognized leader in the modern school of Dutch thought. The present work is difficult to classify; the publishers say "it is a mingling of a novel, an epic, a fairy tale, a popular book and an ethical and philosophic treatise." The central figure is the little boy, John, a seeker after truth, asking, as all men in all ages have asked, for the solution of the riddle of the universe. He meets many friends, both in the real world and in the wonderful fairy world of his imagination. All profess ability to help him, and to each he gives himself up unreservedly, only to learn in the end that the great task before him is yet to be begun. The romance abounds in symbolism and allegory. Dr. Van Eeden was born in 1860 at Haarlem, Holland.

The author says: "It is obvious that the attitude of the educated man to the Bible has undergone nothing less than a revolution. Instead of the authoritative pronouncement of Deity through arbitrarily chosen instruments, the Bible is now regarded as a great body of literature, one part differing from another part in glory. And the parts have been seen to be of far greater value than the whole."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 23, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SELLING BOOKS ON THE "SALE OR RETURN" PLAN.

INSTIGATED by the experiments which are now being made by several English publishing houses that have recently offered some of their new books "on sale or return," under certain restrictions and for a limited period, the question has been raised in several quarters whether it would not be desirable to introduce the system into this country also. The London Publishers' Circular last month touched on this subject, and concluded that it saw nothing in the system that would materially benefit the English booktrade, and, we must confess, we are inclined to agree with our contemporary that we also see nothing in the system that would materially benefit the American booktrade.

Theoretically, the Continental system of sending out books "on sale" seems to have met every requirement of affording to the public in every locality an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with all the latest important books at a minimum of cost to all concerned in the making and distributing of books. The "on sale" system in years past has no doubt proved of considerable benefit to the publisher and has contributed much in maintaining the high standard of efficiency of the bookseller in Germany. Since it is impossible for a bookseller to stock up at his own expense with even the books that might be likely to appeal to the book buyers in his neighborhood, it is desirable that the bookseller should have an opportunity of bringing to the attention of his customers such books as he may think will be of interest to them, and, if unsuccessful in his efforts to make a sale, that he should be able to return them to the publisher at a small expense for carriage.

However, seductive as the "on sale" system may appear in theory, in practice it is proving of decreasing value. Modern commercial transactions are more and more founded on a cash basis, and the retail merchant is more than ever required to know his field and to cultivate it and provide for it in the most economical manner and with absolute promptness. Even in Germany it is now the exception, no longer the rule, to send books "on sale," and every year publishers are offering greater inducements to buy for cash and are endeavoring in other ways to discourage buying on commission.

There are a number of objections to the "on sale or return" system which would prejudice the American publishing trade against it. The most serious objections are the necessity of locking up capital, the returns on which are bound to be slow if not altogether uncertain, and the inevitable waste in manufacturing books to provide for a demand that may never exist. Other, but by no means minor objections to the "on sale and return" plan, are the complexity of bookkeeping and shipping involved; the extra expense of correspondence, and several others which would no doubt be encountered in following the system. Unless the considerable deterioration of stock unavoidably caused by handling cloth bound books is considered a negligible item, that proportion of books which is to be sent out "on sale" must be bound in paper, an innovation that would not find favor with the bookbuying public which is interested in still better bindings rather than in no bindings at all.

And, finally, we question whether the "on sale" system would prove an unmixed blessing to the bookseller, or whether it would even stimulate him to greater enterprise. As a mortgage on a church is supposed to act as an incentive to greater zeal and activity, so a bookseller's capital invested in the stock that lines the walls of his store will prove vastly more impelling to make sales than perfunctorily sending out books to curious customers on the chance that he may make a sale at the small cost of the carriage both ways of the book by mail or express. In the one case it is despair if a sale is not made, in the other it is only a hope deferred, and the difference makes all the difference in the world in moving stock.

HOW "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" WAS PUBLISHED.

A CORRESPONDENT ("L. S. G.") of the Boston Transcript some time ago gave the following information concerning the publishing of Mrs. Stowe's early works:

I feel disposed to correct some misapprehensions concerning Mrs. Stowe's early works and her Boston publishers. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was never rejected. As book material it was offered first and only to Messrs. Jewett & Company, after running in weekly instalments in the National Era with immense vogue. It was "Dred," the famous author's second book, that went to a publisher of second choice, for a peculiar reason about to be given, and the transfer was vice versa as between the publishers interested.

It took years for American book publishers to convince themselves that serializing may be an excellent way of advertising. The house of Jewett deliberated on the question of commercial availability in a volume from copy that had been widely circulated for months. Everybody had read "Uncle Tom," what was the prospect of creating a new demand for the familiar tale? A proposition was made to publish the book for the author, by which, of course, she would receive the profits and the publisher the usual commission only; but Mrs. Stowe would not hear of it, and carried her point with the young publisher, who proceeded to risk handling the re-birth, with what success the world knows. Sales were rapid and phenomenal. When he could count twenty-five thousand net, something happened. Mrs. Stowe applied for annulment of their contract and recourse to that he had preferred and she had so vigorously opposed. It was now his turn to refuse, and no less was it her pleasure to urge. Like the woman of Scripture, by her continual coming she wearied him. Sometimes their interviews were attended by the lady's reverend husband, Calvin E. Stowe, to strengthen her side. Nothing was accomplished, however, beyond bringing the publisher to decide that dealing with a person utterly unbusinesslike would best be discontinued. Therefore the manuscript of "Dred" submitted to these publishers was forthwith declined, and, being necessarily withdrawn, found acceptance with Messrs. Phillips & Sampson.

This account, literally, was given me by Mr. John P. Jewett himself—the autumn of 1855, I think—in his office on Washington Street, near School Street. Shortly after, I met once for all the happy author of the seething anti-slavery story in the publishing house in Winter Street, north side, to whom I was introduced by her new publisher, the head of another deservedly popular though all too short-lived firm.

In connection with the foregoing the Rev. Dr. Charles M. Clarke's recollections of how "Uncle Tom's Cabin" came to be brought out in England may be interesting. We quote from Dr. Clarke's article as printed in the London Book Monthly last September. We note, by the way, that Dr. Clarke is under the mistaken impression that the book was first brought out "by Putnam of New York."

One evening, at the end of March, 1852, Mr. Henry Vizetelly walked into a certain printing office situated in Bouverie Street, where a young firm had recently started in business. He bore in his hand a copy of a book which, he explained, he had just received from David Bogue, the publisher—"Uncle Tom's Cabin," in two volumes, fresh from America. David Bogue was not disposed to issue reprints, and, in opposition to the counsel of his literary adviser, Mr. Henry Mayhew, had not thought sufficiently well of the work to make an exception in this case—a decision he always regretted. He had, therefore, entrusted the book for disposal to Vizetelly, who thus submitted it to Salisbury, Clarke & Co., because my father, apart from the printing firm, carried on a publishing business at 148 Fleet Street. Mr. Frederick Greenwood then acted as reader and literary adviser to him, and took part in what followed.

Vizetelly said that in view of the probability of another copy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" arriving from America by the next mail, some decision must be come to at once. He could, therefore, only give until noon on the following day for a definite answer. My father put the first volume into his pocket and split the other into two portions. One portion he gave to Mr. Greenwood, the other to his own partner, Mr. Salisbury, and he promised the firm's acceptance or refusal of the offer by the time specified. Quickly my father skimmed through his volume. Mr. Salisbury sat up in bed half the night reading his pages aloud to his wife, while the tears streamed down his face, as, indeed, was depicted in a cartoon in Diogenes, the rival comic to Punch in those days. Mr. Greenwood reported that at the end of an hour he was actually in a tremble lest the interest of the story should flag; but that, on the contrary, the further he got the greater grew his admiration. His recommendation was to conclude the purchase of the book and print it quickly, lest the venture should be forestalled. The decision to do so was reached on the last day of March, and on April 15 a first English edition, consisting of 5000 copies, crown 8vo, bound in cloth boards, price 2s. 6d., of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was issued by Charles H. Clarke & Co., of 148 Fleet Street, London.

The trade hung fire, the subscription list proved small, and the publisher was reluctantly compelled to regard the thing as somewhat of a failure. For some months the sales remained very slight, but in August a five-column review of the book appeared in the Times. Eulogistic notices in other papers speedily followed, and it jumped into unexampled popularity, became the rage, as perhaps no other work has ever been. . . .

Such a success naturally brought rival editions into the English market, and one especially was reprinted bodily from my father's issue. Unfortunately for the reprinter, he included a preface which Mr. Greenwood had contributed, and which, of course, was copyright. A great supply had been distributed to the booksellers, but none could be legally sold till a satisfactory agreement had been come to with Clarke. Later on a still greater advantage came to him at a moment when he really could not keep up with the orders which flowed in. In the early editions of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' the chapters were without head-lines; but it struck my father that here was a blemish which should be repaired in a more sumptuous edition. Mr. Greenwood supplied the headings, and what must another house do but print an edition with these very headings. This was a more grievous blunder than the one already mentioned, for, while a preface is a thing apart and may be deleted, head-lines distributed throughout a book infect it with illegality. Thus Clarke & Co. were able to acquire this guilty edition at less than the cost of paper and print, and by merely substituting a fresh title page had an abundant supply of 'Uncle Tom,' drawn from a rival source.

In the autumn of 1852 my father sent his confidential clerk, Mr. S. O. Beeton, to America to interview Mrs. Harriet Beecher-Stowe, and hand her an honorarium of a thousand guineas in recognition of the profit he had realized from her book. This is believed to be the first instance on record in which an English publisher recognized any moral obligation to share his profits with the author of a non-copyright reprint. Meanwhile, the sales in England romped along. My father supplied Routledges with 400,000 copies of a shilling edition, and that firm religiously preserved their ledger for 1852-53 as a unique curiosity, the entire entries for the year having reference to 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' A quarter of a million copies of a sixpenny edition were done for another house, and within twelve months no less than a million and a quarter copies of the book were produced by Clarke & Co., with a net profit to them of £18,000. . . .

Even now the publishing houses are continually reprinting "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and its annual sales run to some fifty thousand copies, a circulation which not more than half a dozen authors of our present day can rival with a current work of fiction.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY.

THIS new biographical cyclopedia, just completed, is, according to its title-page, "The history of the United States as illustrated in the lives of the founders, builders, and defenders of the republic, and of the men and women who are doing the work and moulding the thought of the present time." The thirteenth volume, which completes the biographical part of the work, may be taken as an example of the whole.

Its biographies are arranged not chronologically nor alphabetically, but by institutions, movements, or any other connecting links in human work. This is an important feature of all the volumes. Each one covers a certain period of American history, and gives in groups all the presidents, national officers, authors, artists, etc., of the time. Thus the thirteenth volume begins with the governors of Kentucky, and these biographies are followed by those of the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, while members of various publication concerns, business houses, corporations, colleges and universities are treated in order, when possible, only those of a certain period being included. This volume also contains the biographies of prominent American authors, artists and sculptors, and inventors of the period. Each volume is separately indexed under names.

The publishers, James T. White & Company, maintain that the work will be found as accurate as is possible, each proof having been read eight or ten times, every date having been carefully verified, and each biographical sketch having been corrected by the person concerned or by a relative or a descendant. The Spanish-American war is contained in the ninth volume, in the biographies of those concerned.

Work on the Cyclopedia has been going on through the past seventeen years. The first volume was made of Revolutionary biographical matter, the fourth of that of the Civil War, the sixth of that of the Mexican War, and so on through American history.

The fourteenth volume is made up of the main index and the "Conspectus." The index to the set is both personal and topical, and the former contains cross references indexing not only the biography of a man, but references to him in other biographies, poems, etc. The Conspectus of American Biography the publishers claim to be a unique compilation. It contains lists, among others, of the delegates to the Colonial Congresses, the Presidents and other officers of the country, national and state, the officers of churches and universities, the editors of magazines and newspapers, the directors of astronomical observatories, actors, authors, statues, pseudonyms, notable sayings, last words of famous characters, and character lessons to be drawn from the whole.

A SOCIETY FOR THE STUDY OF THE GYPSIES.

STUDENTS of Romany and others interested in the gypsies, will no doubt be interested to learn that the British Gypsy Lore Society has been revived, under the presidency of the veteran gypsy scholar, David MacRitchie.

The society is to publish a quarterly journal devoted to original research, the first number of which will appear in July next. John Sampson, librarian of the Liverpool University, will contribute the leading article, in which he will give a summary of the present state of Romany knowledge and indicate the problems still in need of elucidation. George F. Black, of the New York Public Library, Lenox branch, will contribute a bibliography of works relating to the gypsies.

R. A. Scott Macfie, 6 Hope Terrace, Liverpool, England, is the secretary of the new society, and will be pleased to hear from any one desiring to become a member. The annual subscription has been fixed at £1.

THE TRADE SUFFERS IN PITTSBURGH.

THE news from Pittsburgh, Pa., is not encouraging. The damage through the floods that have destroyed a large portion of the city is now estimated as running considerably over $20,000,000. The climax was reached on the night from the 14th to the 15th inst., when the water had risen to thirty-six feet two inches, the highest for a century.

Business has naturally suffered, if not directly from the flood then from the demoralization caused by it. While we have thus far been unable to hear directly from only one member of the trade, judging from his loss we fear that others in the neighborhood must also have sustained some loss by the inundation. The bookselling firm from which we have word is R. S. Davis & Co., on Wood Street, whose reserve stock of new spring books, etc., kept in the basement, was almost entirely ruined by water in the night of March 14 to 15 Owing to the extraordinary weight of book stock, and the dust conditions of Pittsburg, Davis & Co. had only a small part of their stock on exhibition, the bulk being stored away in the basement. On the fateful night the water reached their building and flooded the lower part to the height of five feet, ruining most of their new spring stock, which had just been received and stored away.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS.

AT a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Booksellers' League, held on the evening of March 18, the following officers were elected: First vice-president, C. L. Bowman; second vice-president, E. B. Hackett; secretary, Francis Gilman; and treasurer, Charles A. Burkhardt. Charles E. Bonnell was reappointed manager of the Employment Bureau, which he has so efficiently administered since 1899, and the secretary was instructed to forward to Mr. Bonnell a vote of thanks of the League for his splendid services.

The president, A. Wessels, appointed the following committees:

Entertainment Committee.—E. B. Hackett, F. Gilman, W. G. Preston and C. E. Peabody.

Finance Committee.—C. L. Bowman, A. G. Seiler, S. Reis and J. B. Pratt.

Printing Committee.—C. A. Burkhardt, F. D. Lacy, Cass Richardson and T. E. Schulte.

Membership Committee.—A. Growoll, John A. Holden, C. E. Butler and J. Wirth.

A. Giraldi and J. H. Fairbanks were elected to fill vacancies in the Board of Managers.

It was decided to give the next annual dinner on the evening of April 10, at the Aldine Association.

NEW YORK STATIONERS' DINNER.

THE NEW YORK STATIONERS gave their second annual dinner at the Hotel Astor on the evening of March 19. Upwards of three hundred members of the association and their friends were present and all had an uproarious time. Theodore L. C. Gerry, the president of the Association, acted as toastmaster until his voice gave out, and William C. Popper relieved him. Among the speakers were Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America; Judge Charles F. Moore, of West Virginia, and First Deputy Police Commissioner O'Keefe, of New York City.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PIERRE EUGÈNE MARCELLIN BERTHELOT, who was regarded as one of the most brilliant experimental scientists of his time, died suddenly in Paris on March 18, his death being due to shock at his wife's unexpected death. Professor Berthelot was born in Paris in 1827. He received his doctor's degree in 1854, and in 1860 was made professor of organic chemistry at the Ècole de Pharmacie. In 1865 a chair of chemistry was established for him at the College de France, with which he was connected up to the time of his death. Among his more popular discoveries were acetylene gas and smokeless powder. His scientific work embraced the widest scope. He made experimental researches into the phenomena of explosives and the generation of heat in chemical transformations. The science of thermo-chemistry is largely built upon his initial experiments. His published works number over a dozen and he was a constant contributor to the scientific press.

DR. ALBERT SAMUEL GATSCHET, for twenty-eight years one of the chief scientists of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, and probably the highest authority in this country on Indian languages and dialects, died on March 16 at his home in Washington, D. C. As a linguist and writer on languages and dialects he was well known in the United States and abroad, but his most novel accomplishments were shown in his work among the Indians, to whom he had devoted his greatest energies for the last thirty years. Dr. Gatschet was born at St. Beatenberg, Berne, Switzerland, October 3, 1832. His early studies were of German and Romance dialects in Switzerland, relative to which he wrote his first books. Later he pursued antiquarian investigations in the British Museum. He came to the United States in 1868, and immediately became interested in the almost unknown Indian languages and dialects. Major J. W. Powell was making geographical surveys for the government at that time, and, his attention being called to some of the articles of Dr. Gatschet, he appointed him ethnologist, and assigned him to accompany the expedition. It was in 1879 that the bureau of ethnology was established, and the linguist was transferred to that bureau. He retained that place until the time of his death. His published work includes "A Creek Migration Legend," "The Klamath Indians of Southwestern Oregon," and a glossary and critical analysis of the Creek language, also in the dialect, which books are now in use among the Indians of these tribes in Alabama and Georgia, and numerous reports and articles.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH, poet and novelist, died on March 19, at his home in Mount Vernon Street, Boston, Mass. Several weeks ago Mr. Aldrich submitted to an operation which was not believed to be serious. His recovery was slow, but sufficient to make it possible to remove him from the hospital to his home. His vitality was very low, however, and he failed to rally. Mr. Aldrich, the last connecting link between the old and new literary school in this country, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., described by him as "the prettiest place in all the world," on November 11, 1836. The town of his birth was often pictured in his writings. It was the "Rivermouth" in his "Story of a Bad Boy," in which Aldrich wrote the story of his own life. Much of Aldrich's early life was spent in New Orleans, La., where his father was engaged in a banking enterprise. Young Aldrich was prepared for Harvard University, and it was to complete his preparation that he was sent back to Portsmouth when he was still a boy. When he was about seventeen years old the banking enterprise in New Orleans failed and the elder Aldrich died soon afterward. A wealthy uncle in New York offered to send young Thomas through Harvard, but Thomas preferred to enter his uncle's counting house, where he served as a clerk for three years. During this time he published a volume of poems entitled "The Bells: a Collection of Chimes." During the years from 1856 to 1870 he wrote much of the poetry on which his fame rests. Among his works of that period were "The Ballad of Baby Bell, and Other Poems," "Daisy's Necklace and What Came of It," "Pampinea, and Other Poems," "Out of His Head: a Romance in Prose," two more collections of poems, and "The Story of a Bad Boy." His other works include "Marjorie Daw, and Other People," "Prudence Palfrey," "The Queen of Sheba," "The Stillwater Tragedy," "From Ponkapog to Pesth," "An Old Town by the Sea," "Two Bites at a Cherry," "Unguarded Gates," besides essays and several plays. He was a contributor to Putnam's Monthly, the Knickerbocker and the New York Evening Mirror. For three years he worked as assistant editor on the Home Journal, then published by N. P. Willis and George P. Morris. From 1865 to 1874 he edited Every Saturday, and from 1881 to 1890 he was editor of the Atlantic Monthly. In 1890 he retired from active editorial work. His last work was a poem on Longfellow in commemoration of the centennial of the poet's birth. In 1896 Henry L. Pierce, a life-long friend and literary patron of Aldrich, died leaving the poet an estate at Ponkapog, Mass., together with $200,000.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE body of Immanuel Kant is soon to be transferred from the "Stoa Kantiana" adjoining the Cathedral of Königsberg. The Stoa is a small modern chapel and its architecture is out of harmony with that of the cathedral, which dates from the fourteenth century and has recently been restored. The body of the philosopher will be transferred to the cathedral. A splendid monument is to be erected to Kant, who was a native of Königsberg and died there in 1804.

MONCURE DANIEL CONWAY celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on March 17, having been born on that day at Middleton, in Stafford County, Virginia, in 1832. Originally a Methodist preacher, and holding extreme Southern views, he came under the influence of Emerson and the radical opponents of slavery and changed both his political belief and his religious creeds. He entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and on graduation essayed to preach Unitarian Doctrine in his native State. His anti-slavery sentiments made his stay in the South impossible, and he therefore went to Cincinnati. Afterward, for a time, he edited the Boston Commonwealth, and in 1863 he visited England to make propaganda for the anti-slavery cause. The trustees of the ultra-liberal South Place Chapel, in London, secured his services, and there he preached from 1863 to 1884, when he returned to the United States. Again, from 1892 to 1897, he occupied his London pulpit, and then he retired to devote himself exclusively to literary work. A profound scholar, who has touched life at many points, who has come into contact with many of the greatest men of his time, and whose personality is ever most charming, Dr. Conway has won for himself many friends and admirers in all parts of the world, who showered congratulations upon him on the anniversary of his birth.

OLD BOOK NOTES.

ON March 16 Sotheby's sold four rare historical items. One of these was "A Prayse and Reporte of Maister Forbisher [Sir Martin Frobisher, the redoubtable English explorer and naval hero] on a Voyage to Meta Incognita," 1578, which fetched $5000. Only one other copy of this work is known, and that is in the British Museum. A rare first edition of Frobisher's second voyage, 1577, brought $3800. The third and last voyage, 1578, fetched $4600. "The True Declaration of the Troublesome Voyage of M. John Hankins to Parts of Guynea and West Indies in 1567-68," printed in 1569, sold for $3150. The four items were purchased by B. F. Stevens & Brown for an American customer. The same firm also bought the "Relation of Maryland," with the map dated 1635, for $2000. Only three copies with the map are known. A second folio Shakespeare fetched $1100 at the same sale. An autograph manuscript of Robert Burns's "Scots wa hae wi' Wallace Bled," offered as the original copy, fetched $1775; a sixteenth century manuscript of "Preces Pia" sold for $3850, and the manuscripts of Bret Harte's "The Devotion of Enriquez," "Clarence Barker's Luck" and "Susy" fetched $85, $60 and $255, respectively.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Arena for March contains an interesting essay on Oscar Wilde by Professor Archibald Henderson, of the University of North Carolina; "The Poet of the Sierras [Joaquin Miller] on his Problem-poem dealing with Love after Marriage;" "Some Aspects of Poe's Poetry," by H. Holland Carter.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

George H. Richmond, 358 Fifth Avenue, New York, has published two interesting catalogues of Americana. One of these is entitled "Fifty-five Letters of George Washington to Benjamin Lincoln, 1777-1799," briefly described, with a foreword by A. J. Bowden. A short time ago Mr. Richmond offered a remarkable series of letters by Washington written to George and James Clinton, thirty-five in all, of which twenty-six had never been published. It was then thought that such another series of historic Revolutionary manuscripts would never be met with again. How futile such conjectures are likely to prove is again shown in this case, and Mr. Bowden's statement that "the present series will never be rivalled" may in time also be refuted by the discovery of another such "find," though that now seems highly improbable. The present collection is of interest because it contains a number of letters wholly in the handwriting of Washington, while the Clinton series did not contain one. These letters also include some of the longest and most interesting ever written by Washington and none of them has ever been printed, or has been published only in part. (64 p. 16°.) The other catalogue is entitled "The Unpublished Revolutionary Papers of Major-General Edward Hand, of Pennsylvania, 1777-1784," catalogued, with preliminary note, by A. J. Bowden. The documents comprise sixty-one pieces, several of them being answers to queries by Washington relating to his long-planned but never accomplished siege of New York—a practically unwritten chapter of Revolutionary history. (30 p. 16°.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

Andover, Mass.—The Andover Bookstore, conducted for many years by G. A. Higgins & Co., has been sold and will be removed from its old stand. The Andover Press is the purchaser.

Beloit, Wis.—Earl M. Gates, who has been window trimmer with J. M. Bostwick & Sons, at Janesville, Wis., will open a book and art store here on April 1.

Boston, Mass.—Small, Maynard & Co. have removed from Cambridge to offices at No. 15 Beacon Street.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—D. F. McGill has succeeded to the book business of J. W. Fusard.

New York City.—In April the office of The Collector, published by Walter R. Benjamin, will be removed to the Brunswick Building, (Room 303,) at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street.

New York City.—The following notice to the creditors of the Consolidated Retail Booksellers was issued on March 18 by Peter B. Olney, the referee in bankruptcy: "Notice is hereby given that Merrill E. Gates, Jr., the trustee herein, has filed his verified petition, praying that a meeting of creditors be called for the purpose of considering propositions to compromise certain claims and suits against the subscribers to the preferred stock, and the question of bringing other suits against other subscribers, more particularly set forth in said petition, and also to consider whether said trustee should begin suit against James Talcott to recover the amount of a certain transfer of accounts amounting to some seven thousand dollars, and that a meeting of the said creditors will be held at the office of Peter B. Olney, Esq., referee in bankruptcy, No. 68 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 29th day of March, 1907, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said petition will be considered and acted upon. That such other business as may properly come before said meeting will be transacted."

Plymouth, Wis.—Charles Pfeffer, bookseller, has been succeeded by R. W. Jennings.

Reading, Pa.—The Quality Shop, booksellers, have discontinued business.

Tacoma, Wash.—The Rex Book and Stationery Co. has opened a new store.

Waelder, Tex.—Henderson & Brookes, booksellers, have been succeeded by Brookes & Brookes.

Waynesville, N. C.—H. C. Lindsay, bookseller, has been succeeded by the Waynesville Book Co.

AUCTION SALES.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"THE ANNUAL CATALOG" for 1906 is now ready for delivery.

C. L. Stebbins, the general manager of Small, Maynard & Co., will sail for England in a few weeks in search of such foreign novelties as London and Edinburgh can furnish.

B. H. BLACKWELL, Cambridge, Eng., has just printed in pamphlet form Hugh H. Johnson's Greek version, in the same measure of the exquisite Latin poem, "Pervigilium Veneris."

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly publish in book form the novel "Mother," by Maxim Gorky. The book will have the same illustrations by Ivanowski that have appeared in Appleton's Magazine, in which the novel has been running serially.

ADOLF HEPNER'S book, "America's Aid to Germany in 1870-1871," published in St. Louis, Mo., two years ago, has been brought out by J. H. W. Dietz, of Stuttgart, in a German version entitled "Der Schutz der Deutschen in Frankreich. 1870, 1871."

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have just ready "The Iron Way," by Sarah Pratt Carr, who has made not only an interesting but a strong story out of the facts connected with the building of the Central Pacific Railroad. John W. Norton has illustrated the book.

ALL who have left the city behind to live in the country, and all who are planning to do so, will be interested in two small books full of practical suggestions and attractive illustrations entitled "The Little Farm" and "The Stable Handbook," issued by John Lane Company.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just published an edition of "The Spectator," in four volumes, in Everyman's Library, reproducing the spelling, punctuation, type, etc., of the edition of 1714, and giving notes, a general and biographical index, and a brief account of all contemporary persons mentioned in the essays.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, New York, have ready for immediate publication "The Cumulative Speller," by Charles E. Smith, a modern and practical speller for commercial education. The work also contains a special chapter on new spelling, together with 300 words recommended by the Simplified Spelling Board.

TENNANT & WARD will bring out shortly after Easter "A Short Introduction to Franciscan Literature," by Fr. Paschal Robinson, O.F.M., which will contain a brief outline of the early sources of Franciscan history, and a list of works relating to the Franciscan movement, which have appeared since the thirteenth century.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY will issue early in May "Coillard of the Zambesi," by C. W. Mackintosh, giving the life histories of François and Christenah Coillard, of the Paris Missionary Society in South and Central Africa; also, E. D. Morel's book, "Red Rubber," a story of the rubber slave trade to-day flourishing on the Congo.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly a new volume by E. Ray Lankester, Director of the Natural History Departments of the British Museum, containing three papers dealing respectively with the responsibilities of man incidental to his defiance of the laws of natural selection—The Advance of Science, 1881-1906, and that strange disease The Sleeping Sickness, into a volume entitled from the first paper "The Kingdom of Man."

FREDERICK J. DRAKE & Co., Chicago, announce that they have purchased all copyrights, plates, sheet stock, etc., of the subscription books of the Railway Publications Society, Chicago. They will bring out this modern series of railway publications for the trade in trade editions in the near future. They have also arranged for the publication of the books formerly published by the Henneberry Company, of Chicago.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out a new story by Basil King, entitled "The Giant's Strength," a story of ruthlessness tempered with a beautiful love episode; "Katherine," by E. Temple Thurston, a story of temptation bravely resisted; also, "Tiberius Smith," by Hugh Pendexter, the story of a clever showman whose business takes him into the out-of-the-way corners of the earth and furnishes a series of most unusual situations humorously told.

G. W. DILLINGHAM Co. announce "The Lincoln Story Book," compiled by Henry L. Williams, containing upwards of six hundred stories ascribed to Lincoln, full of philosophy and humor; "Cinders, the Diary of a Drummer," by Wright Bauer, a collection of up-to-date stories that will appeal especially to the "Knights of the Grip;" also, "Flip Flap Fables," by Frank E. Kellogg, twenty-seven tales concerning animals of various kinds, from which may be deduced many morals.

AN interesting find of an unknown Ibsen MS., according to W. R. Prior in The Author, has recently been made, forming a half-completed epic poem written in 1864-5. The MS., which in many ways is "Brand" roughly outlined, was lost during Ibsen's stay in Rome in the sixties, and only found many years after, the owner presenting it to the Royal Library, Copenhagen. As arranged with the family of Ibsen, a Danish author is superintending the publication of the fragment, which will appear in print during the year.

THE Société du Mercure de France will publish at once "Paul Verlaine: sa Vie, son Œuvre," by Edmond Lepelletier, who knew Verlaine intimately from his earliest years. The poet entrusted him with the task of writing his biography, and left him his papers. M. Lepelletier, according to the London Athenæum, "tells the truth as to Verlaine's adventures and misfortunes, which have been distorted by various writers." Unpublished sketches written in London, and a correspondence dealing with Verlaine's religious opinions, are given.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON Co., Philadelphia, announce a novel entitled "Dulcibel," by Henry Peterson, author of "Pemberton," with illustrations in color by Howard Pyle. The plot, half true and half fiction, takes place in the strange period of the Salem witch trials, when the best educated men of New England were carried away in their narrow bigotry by the charges of a few vindicitive and mischief-making girls. They offer $250 in prizes to readers for a review that will voice the sentiment of the majority of the newspapers and magazines of the United States.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will bring out immediately "Ian of the Orcades," a novel by Wilfred J. Campbell, laid in ancient Scotland. They will publish early in the spring "The Higher Ministries of Recent English Poetry," by Frank W. Gunsaulus, a book which has grown out of Dr. Gunsaulus's lectures at Chautauqua; W. L. Watkinson's "The Supreme Conquest, and Other Sermons Preached in America;" also, a work by Dr. Arthur J. Brown, entitled "The Foreign Missionary," which tells of the labors of nineteen thousand Protestant missionaries all over the world.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & CO. will publish about April 1 Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's timely book on "Foods and Their Adulterations." Dr. Wiley is chief chemist to the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, and his wide researches in the interests of purity in food commodities give anything he might write on the subject an authoritativeness that is unquestioned. The fact that the new national food and drugs law have become effective and that public interest in the matter has been thoroughly aroused will no doubt result in quite a demand for the volume. The book will be adequately illustrated from original photographs and drawings.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly "The Trail of the Seneca," a new book for boys, by James A. Braden, author of "Connecticut Boys in the Western Reserve," and "Far Past the Frontier." The new book continues the story of John Jerome and Return Kingdom, the two boys who ventured into the unbroken forests to make their fortunes as Indian traders and to establish their homes. They built their cabins on the banks of the Cuyahoga, and it is in this river's beautiful and historic valley that the scene of the story is laid. A tale of frontier life when danger was the constant guest at every settler's fireside, there is sufficient action, deeds of daring and adventure to win for "The Trail of the Seneca" even greater popularity than Mr. Braden's first Indian stories.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish at once "The Life of Walter Pater," by Thomas Wright, a two-volume work, which will contain many personal anecdotes heretofore not known to the public. They will publish in April "A Journey in the Back Country," by Frederick Law Olmsted, in two volumes; the second volume of Albert Bielschowsky's three-volume work, "The Life of Goethe," translated by William A. Cooper, this volume covering the period from 1788 to 1815; also, "The Shadow of a Great Rock," a western love story by William R. Lighton. They announce for May publication "Our Struggle for the Fourteenth Colony: Canada and the American Revolution," by Justin H. Smith, a book by the Professor of Modern History at Dartmouth, which gives the story of our efforts from 1774 to 1783 to incorporate Canada in the American Union.

A COMPLIMENTARY dinner was given Tuesday evening, the 19th inst., to Fred D. Irish, who has recently retired from the firm of Dana Estes & Co., at Clark's, by a few of his Boston friends in all branches of the trade on the eve of his departure for a much-needed vacation. Among those present were Charles Gallagher, of Charles Gallagher & Co.; George Simonds, of C. H. Simonds & Co.; C. T. Baker, of E. Fleming & Co.; N. D. Macdonald, of Macdonald & Sons; John and Edward Gordon, of the Boston Bookbinding Co.; R. H. Hinkley and W. H. Jackson, of the R. H. Hinkley Co.; H. M. Caldwell, of the H. M. Caldwell Co.; F. H. Niccolls, of F. H. Niccolls & Co.; E. R. Baker, Herman Kleinteich and George Whitten. W. H. Jackson presided. H. M. Caldwell presented to Mr. Irish in behalf of those present a handsome umbrella, the recipient responding in a reminiscent vein. Mr. Irish will have the best wishes of his many friends throughout the country on his trip for renewed health as well as recreation.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish during the spring, "Persia: the Awakening East," a narrative of travel by W. P. Cresson, a Washington architect; Malcolm C. Soloman's book, "The Old Engravers of England in Their Relation to Contemporary Life and Art," which covers the English school of engraving from its commencement in the sixteenth century to its climax at the end of the eighteenth; a translation by Albert Keyzer of M. Goron's experiences as chief of the Paris Detective Police among the criminals of Paris, entitled "The Truth About the Case;" and four novels—Jack London's "A Daughter of the Snows," an inexpensive edition of an Alaska story first published four years ago; "The Lifting of a Finger," by Ina Breevoort Roberts, also a new edition; "Running Horse Inn," by Alfred Tresidder Sheppard, the scene of which is laid in England at the close of the Napoleonic wars when riots threatened the government; and Mrs. Stella M. Düring's "Disinherited," a novel of present-day England dealng with the marriage of an aged baronet, the birth of his child, and the consequent disinheritance of his former nearest of kin.

DODGE PUBLISHING CO. announce "The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics," edited by Charles Welsh, well known to the booktrade. This anthology presents the best examples of Irish songs and lyrics from the earliest Bardic literature, the folk songs, street ballads and patriotic poetry; the pathetic romantic and sentimental poetry; the humorous and convivial verse with which the Irish literature abounds, and the refined, tender and mystical spirit which breathes in the poetry of the Irish renaissance of to-day. In compiling the collection the editor has had the advantage of the critical judgment of some of the foremost Irish scholars and poets, among whom may be mentioned Dr. Douglas Hyde, Stephen Lucine Gwynn, Lady Gregory, D. J. O'Donoghue, as well as the best English scholars on this side of the Atlantic, including Professor F. N. Robinson, who occupies the Celtic chair at Harvard University; Dr. Maurice F. Egan, of the Catholic University, in Washington; S. R. Richardson. They also announce "Knocks from the Little Hammer of Diogenes Knockersmith," a collection of cynical and wise sayings; also, "Poems We Love," a collection of old favorite poems from well-known writers, edited by Leigh Mitchell Hodges.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish on the 25th inst. "The Diamond Key, and How the Railway Heroes Won It," by Alvah Milton Kerr, (illustrated by F. B. Masters and others,) exciting stories of courage displayed in the struggle to obtain the "diamond key," a badge of honor, which is hardly fiction, but rather more a history of American steam railway building and management; "Heart Melodies," a collection of noble and gracefully expressed thoughts by great writers, edited by Mary Allette Ayer, an appropriate Easter gift; "Fifty Flower Friends with Familiar Faces," a field book for boys and girls, by Edith Dunham, with twelve full-page colored plates, decorations and fifty text illustrations from nature by W. I. Beecroft; "Dave Porter's Return to School," by Edward Stratemeyer, the third of the Dave Porter Series, illustrated by F. Gilbert Edge, in which Dave's return to the boarding-school at "Oak Hall" is marked by interesting experiences; "Raymond Benson at Krampton," by Clarence B. Burleigh, the second volume of the Raymond Benson Series, illustrated by L. J. Bridgman, a story of life at a typical country academy; also, "Priscilla of the Doll Shop," by Nina Rhoades, illustrated by Bertha G. Davidson, which is said to equal in interest any book yet written by this favorite writer.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week a new edition of Le Blanc's "Elements of Electro-Chemistry," translated by W. R. Whitney. Not only is this a new translation from the third German edition, but extensive additions have been made and the whole text has been revised and brought up to date by Dr. J. W. Brown, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The chapters that have been added make the English text more than twice as long as that of the original German. They will publish about April 1 a book entitled "Individual Training in Our Colleges," by Clarence F. Birdseye, a well-known legal author and Amherst graduate of 1874. More than five years ago Mr. Birdseye began a thorough investigation of the students' problems in our colleges from the standpoint of the student himself, rather than from that of the college authorities or alumni. The author, while he believes thoroughly in the college course, does not believe that college students as individuals are getting the mental and moral training that they should from the splendidly endowed institutions of to-day. His work, however, is constructive even more than it is critical, for he points out in the most practical way a remedy for the false conditions, which is likely to commend itself to every interested person. Among the subjects discussed with particular fullness and candor are the problems of college athletics and of the college fraternities.

PICK-UPS.

RECENTLY there was a request at a bookstore for a book on "The Children of Queen Elizabeth," and at once every one in that bookstore fell over himself and industriously hunted through all the available bibliographic helps after that mythical work on the children of the "Virgin Queen."

PROFESSOR PERCIVAL LOWELL is the latest victim of the literal-minded New England printer whose dislike of abbreviations once led him to announce the celebration in a Catholic church of "High Massachusetts." Professor Lowell's recent book on "Mars and Its Canals" appears in a Boston newspaper as "Massachusetts and Its Canals." Coming at a time when Bostonians are discussing the proposed canal across Cape Cod, the announcement doubtless seems wholly appropriate.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY recently recently received a manuscript evidently from some author who nurses a grievance against the lack of appreciation editors show in regard to the work of unknown writers. The manuscript was submitted by "Viola Cloud"—no one knows whether the name is a pseudonym or the real name—who lives in Alabama. Miss Cloud had made a copy of "Jane Eyre," and changing only the names of characters and places sent it in under the title of "Willie May," hoping, no doubt, to see the editor nod. The hoax was discovered by one of the readers and the manuscript returned as decidedly "unavailable."

SHORTHAND.—Shorthand, or stenography, is that tremendous device of enlightenment by means of which a man is enabled to put his thoughts on paper faster than he can think them. It is of the fruitage of hurry, the genius which makes us great and famous. Shorthand has dislodged and banished the obscurity which formerly lurked in handwriting, and imported, instead, the obscurity of diction, which is one of the wonders of the age. The merest business man, of the present day, can dictate a letter which would be thought, fifty years ago, to have been stolen from Immanuel Kant or Bishop Butler, so heavily veiled is its meaning. And in literature, it is a great thing not to have to keep an idea in your mind during all the tedious interval you would occupy in writing it out in longhand. Inspiration is no better for cooling than gravy. Besides, how many authors are there who, if they had to write in their old, laborious way, could get out books often enough to keep themselves from being forgotten, as forgetting is now done? Most likely, but for stenography, we should have no literati beyond those three or four million Parnassides whose pens make them rich enough to bill the country and in that way stave off the deadly blight of oblivion.—Life.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE IRON WAY

When the Central Pacific was finished in 1869, the West was dominated by the power of big events. Such a period makes a splendid background for so attractive a love story as this.

To help the sale of this uncommonly fine story by Sarah Pratt Carr we have a very striking poster, which will be sent to any dealer upon request.

ISSUED FROM

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $12.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Annual American Catalog

Contains in one alphabet a record of all books published during 1905, under author, title, subject and series entries; also under author's name an alphabetical list of the same titles with descriptive annotations from The Publishers' Weekly, etc. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

Same catalog for 1906 will be ready early in March.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 200 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists, fully indexed, at the end of the volume. Indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Index to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1902, out of print.

The Supplementary Index, 1903-1904, 500 pages, 8vo, cloth, with thumb index, $3.00. The alphabet in this volume is supplementary to the original Index of 1902.

The American Educational List

Contains a price-list of the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. (Published annually.) 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

Whitaker's Reference Catalogue of Current Literature, 1906. (London, J. Whitaker & Sons.)

(The trade price-lists of all the British publishers.) 2 vols., half leather binding, $5.00.

The Library Journal

Official Organ of the American Library Association. Chiefly devoted to library economy and bibliography. Established in 1876. Published monthly. Subscription $4.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 35 cents. Price to Europe or other countries in the Union, 16s. a year; single numbers, 1s. 6d.

The Library Index to Periodicals and Current Events

Published monthly, with a quarterly cumulation (indexing the periodicals taken in most libraries, large and small). Subscription, $3.00 per year. Single monthly numbers, 25 cents; quarterly numbers, 50 cents each.

The Annual Library Index

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book-Chapters, etc., Bibliographies, Necrology and Index to Dates of Principal Events. Edited, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of The Library Journal staff, by W. I. FLETCHER and H. E. HAINES. (Published annually) 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

English Catalogue of Books (Annual)

Containing a complete list of all the books published in Great Britain and Ireland in the calendar year, with index to subjects. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

English Catalogue of Books, 1901-1905

The record of these five years in one continuous alphabet. (Seventh volume of series.) 8vo, half morocco, $20.00.

Directory of Publishers

Contains names and addresses of 3876 firms and individuals who issued books in the U. S. from Jan. 1, 1900 to Jan. 1, 1905. (Reprinted from The American Catalog.) 8vo, leatherette, red edges, $1.00.

The Profession of Bookselling

A handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWOLL, managing editor of The Publishers' Weekly, author of "A Bookseller's Library." "Three Centuries of English Booktrade Bibliography," etc. Parts 1 and 2. 8vo boards, each $2.00. (Concluding part in preparation.)

Publications of Societies

A provisional list of the publications of American scientific, literary and other societies, from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Schedules nearly 1,000 societies issuing publications, and gives title-entries of all their publications, as far as data could be obtained from the societies and from libraries. 8vo, paper, $2.50.

State Publications

A provisional list of the official publications of the several States of the United States from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Part 1: New England States. Part 2: North Central States. Part 3: Western States and Territories. Part 4, (In preparation) Southern States. (For the complete work $10.)
